"The networking and professional development opportunities accessible through AASWG are invaluable."

Lynne Mitchell, Private Practice, Toronto, Canada

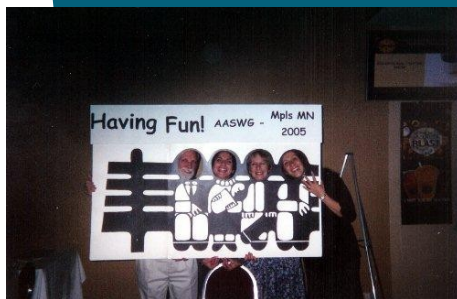

"I joined AASWG because it gives voice to one of the most empowering forms of social work practice – group work. As someone based in England, I feel part of a wider, global group work community. Group workers are fun!" Mark Doel, Sheffield Hallam University, UK

"If you are working with social work groups or want to work with them this is the organization and these are the colleagues for you."

Lawrence Shulman, State University of New York at Buffalo, USA

"Throughout my career, AASWG has been an inspiration, support, and constant reminder of why I became a social worker. If you want to be a part of an accomplished, down-to-earth and fun professional organization, AASWG is like no other."

What is AASWG?

What is AASWG?

The Association for the Advancement of Social Work with Groups, Inc. (AASWG), is a not for profit international professional organization of group workers, group work educators, and friends of group work.

What do we do?

- Practice group work
- Teach group work
- Research group work
- Advocate for group work and the teaching of group work
- Sponsor yearly international symposia on group work
- Support and provide programming and networking opportunities at the local/ chapter level
- Provide group work training opportunities
- Collaborate with other group work organizations
- Support the journal, Social Work with Groups

If you want to have a voice in a democratic, grassroots professional organization, AASWG is the place for you. Please join us.

Reasons to Join AASWG:

- To prevent the isolation felt by many social workers who practice group work, by building relationships with peers and mentors from all over the world
- To share your ideas and successes in group work so that others can learn from you and vice versa
- To make connections with fellow group work practitioners, professors, authors, and scholars locally and internationally
- To have access to the “Members Only” section on the website, with resources such as “Member-to-Member Connections” for professional tips on addressing group work practice dilemmas
- To attend international symposia and local conferences at a reduced rate
- To build your professional library with discounts on selected book titles and the Social Work with Groups journal
- To have easy access to AASWG resources such as the Standards for Social Work with Groups and the Group Work Bibliography
